PACKRAFTING LAGUNA ESMERALDA

This glacial lagoon is located in the heart of the Fuegian Andes, surrounded by lenga forests, peat bogs, canyons, and imposing snow-capped peaks and It is one of the most visited places by those who come to Ushuaia. In this excursion, we propose to enjoy Laguna Esmeralda in a completely different way by combining hiking, observing flora and fauna, landscapes, and photography with a very novel activity: packrafting. We pick you up very early, at 8:30 in the morning from where you are staying, and head northeast towards the Tierra Mayor valley, Once there, each participant receives a backpack with their raft, oars, and safety equipment, and we start a two-hour hike to reach Laguna Esmeralda, crossing the lenga forest peat bogs, and gentle slopes. As we make our way, the Esmeralda stream appears on our left, Once at the lagoon, with the assistance of our guide, we will get in touch with the equipment, and he will teach us the handling techniques to achieve the necessary control and confidence that will allow us to enjoy the activity. Finally, after sharing a hot drink and a snack, we begin the return to our vehicle and then back to the city.
